Hurricane Seen Threat To Northeast

Dawn Drifting Toward Northwest From Cape Hatteras

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Dawn, packing gusts up to 95 miles an hour, drifted about 300 miles off Cape Hatteras, N.C. today and became "a potential threat to the northeast United States coast," the National Hurricane center reported.

At 5 a.m. EDT, the center of the Atlantic season's third hurricane was near Latitude 36.5 with maximum sustained winds North, Longitude 71.5 West, estimated at 89 m.p.h. forecasters said.

Dawn was moving toward the north northwest and was expected to curve gradually toward the north during the day and toward the northeast tonight, forecasters Joe Pelissier said.

"The hurricane is expected to skirt the New England coast tonight but any delay in this expected turn increases the threat to the northeast coast of the United States," he said.

Interests between Cape May, N.J., and Cape Cod were particularly urged to keep alert to further advisories from the hurricane center, Pelissier said. Small craft warnings were displayed along the section of Atlantic coastline.

Meteorologist Niel Frank said Dawn could increase in size and strength today but added, "there is no potential for a severe storm. It's just a minimal hurricane at the present time."

Kicks Props From Under American Position

Thieu Ends Local Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials are privately disgruntled about South Vietnam's abolition of elections on the most basic popular level, declaring the action is a setback to American interests.

Under the decree by the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu, the 10,000 hamlets in South Vietnam will no longer elect their own leaders but will have them imposed.

"We feel this is a setback and we're not happy," said one

U.S. official even though the public position set down by the State Department is that the Saigon move is an internal matter not subject to American influence or comment.

Another view expressed in private was that "the general feeling (in the State Department) is that Saigon's act is not helpful to our interests."

Another official said elimination of democracy at the grass roots undercuts President Nixon's position that his administration is trying to support the principle of self-determination in Vietnam.

Further, other officials said, it could hurt Nixon's reelection drive against Sen. George McGovern, who has charged the President with propping up an authoritarian regime in Saigon.

When asked to explain why Thieu took the action, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said Thursday: "I suppose one must assume the North Vietnamese offensive was a major factor in the decision taken . . .

"I assume, in view of the present danger, South Vietnam felt constrained to do what it could to provide stability at the extreme local level."

Even the officials who expressed displeasure with the Saigon decision agreed this position probably was accurate, although some acknowledged the Thieu government might be using the invasion as an excuse to eliminate some political opponents.

Bray added that Washington was not consulted in advance, although other officials said the United States knew of the decision "for quite a while."

In addition to citing the pressures caused by the Northern invasion, Thieu recently said in a speech that "I must complain that our government has allowed us to enjoy too much democracy too soon."

Arab Terrorists Threaten Bonn

BONN (AP) — The West German government says it is doing all it can to counter the threat of retaliation from Arab terrorists demanding the release of the three guerrillas held for the attack at the Olympics.

The Black September Palestinian group said in a broadcast from Cairo Thursday it would "deal Germany a heavy blow" if the three terrorists are not released.

"We will show the German imperialists, who dragged the honor of the great German people in the mud, what a heavy blow we can deal them if our comrades are not released and the bodies of our dead fighters are not returned to us," the broadcast said.

The spokesman for the West German government, Conrad Ahlers, said "all imaginable and necessary" security precautions had been taken.

Earlier, the Interior Ministry said it had received word that terrorists planned to mail bombs to Jews in Germany in packages and letters for the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, which begins at sundown today.

Eight Black September terrorists invaded the Israeli Olympic quarters at the Olympic Village early Tuesday morning, killed two members of the Israeli Olympic squad, took nine others hostage and threatened to kill them unless Israel released 200 Arab guerrillas serving prison terms in Israel.

The incident came to a bloody culmination late that night at a military airfield outside Munich where the terrorists were allowed to take their captives, ostensibly to be flown to the Middle East.

But police sharpshooters had set an ambush and in the ensuing gunfight all nine of the Israelis were killed along with a West German policeman and five of the terrorists. The other three Arabs were captured, but so far there has been no announcement of charges being filed against them.

The Egyptian government and the Libyan press accused the Bonn government of total responsibility for the killings. "The commandos and the Israeli hostages were killed in a German ambush, by German bullets said in a U.S. base in Germany," said the Egyptians.

Services for the slain Arabs were scheduled at all mosques in Egypt today. An Arab lawyers' group announced it was sending an attorney to observe the German police interrogation of the three captive guerrillas.

"Had it not been for the German police ambush, the Arab commandos and their Israeli hostages would all be alive now," said the Libyan government newspaper Al Eajr Al Jadid. It charged that West Germany had taken a "totally anti-Arab attitude throughout the Munich affair."

McGovern HQ Bugging Tried?

O'Brien Claims May 27 Attempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the men accused of breaking into the Democratic national headquarters also staged an abortive attempt to bug George McGovern's presidential campaign headquarters, says McGovern's campaign director, Lawrence F. O'Brien.

O'Brien said passersby scared the men off as they assembled at 3 a.m. May 27 outside McGovern's former Capitol Hill headquarters.

Although McGovern was not nominated as the Democratic candidate until July 12, he was then the frontrunner. Citing "unimpeachable authority" as his source, O'Brien said Thursday he also had learned that two telephones at Democratic National Committee headquarters, including his own, were tapped for several weeks prior to the June 17 break-in at DNC headquarters in the downtown Watergate Hotel complex.

O'Brien was party chairman at the time. Five men, including two with close ties to the Committee for the Re-Election of President Nixon, were arrested and elaborate eavesdropping and photographic equipment seized inside the DNC offices.

In New York, Clark McGreggor, chairman of the Nixon reelection effort, said the men involved in the break-in thought that they were doing the party a favor. He said that, instead, they had embarrassed the GOP and its leaders. McGreggor said the break-in was "a wholly unauthorized activity . . . a bizarre, stupid, idiotic, absolutely unnecessary enterprise."

And Republican National Committee Chairman Robert Dole said O'Brien's statements were an effort to divert public attention from what he called "strong evidence of illegality in the McGovern campaign fund raising operation."

Union Attacks U.S. Pay Board

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A resolution to spur organized labor in an all-out drive to dissolve the federal Pay Board—"if necessary by a national strike"—has been endorsed by the 1,800 delegates attending the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers convention here.

The resolution, passed Thursday, said the body organized by President Nixon as a check on the nation's inflationary economy was unfairly holding down wages.

The IAM also passed a resolution committing the union to solidarity in defeating President Nixon. The body endorsed Democrat George McGovern's presidential bid earlier in the week.

Tax Structure Changes Studied By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has staked his claim as the 20-new-taxes candidate as White House aides asserted that Democratic foe George McGovern's proposals would double individual taxes.

Through a quartet of spokesmen Thursday, Nixon pledged he would not seek an increase in taxes during a second term. But the spokesmen left open the possibility that he would propose changes in the nation's tax structure.

The President, said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, "will not propose a tax increase in or during a second term."

The President, said domestic adviser John Ehrlichman, "will not ask for any higher taxes—period."

The President, said House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford and Senate Leader Hugh Scott, told a White House meeting of Republican congressmen that "there will be no tax increase propose by this administration."

The triple dose of Nixon views came at a series of White House briefings that also included fresh Republican attacks on McGovern's economic proposals.

Ehrlichman's attack was perhaps the sharpest. He said McGovern's program would require an additional $100 billion and "the inevitable result is that he is going to double" the taxes paid by the individual taxpayer.

McGovern, Ehrlichman added, is a man who "doesn't understand the first thing about the subject" of tax reform and government finance.

While he said it would be premature to divulge specific tax revisions now under administration study, Ehrlichman said the White House would like to reduce residential property taxes by 50 per cent or about $16 billion.

He said there are several ways of accomplishing this goal. One alternative under study is a value-added tax—a sort of national sales tax. Although he said he was "not ruling out any alternative of revenue,"

Omnibus Crime Grants Okayed

Two grants under the Omnibus Crime Control Act have been approved for Pickaway County and Circleville, it was announced jointly by Gov. John J. Gilligan and State Representative Myrl H. Shoemaker today.

A grant in the amount of $3,401 has been approved for Circleville to install modern sanitary facilities in the city jail. The grant will be matched locally by $1,135.

A grant in the amount of $46,290 to the South Central Regional Detention Center, a 6-county project, has been approved. Matching local funds will be $15,615.

Other counties involved in the detention center plan are Ross, Highland, Pike, Jackson and Vinton.

State Fair Ride Fraud Disclosed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Joseph Ferguson says that state examiners at the Ohio State Fair this year uncovered a scheme of ticket resales that could have resulted in a loss of more than $12,000 to ride owners and the fair.

In a release today, Ferguson said the alleged ticket resale scheme on the Sky Ride was uncovered by his examiners about midway through the fair.

He said examiners made an actual count of riders on a particular day. "Our count, when compared to the daily report submitted to the fair board by the ride manager, showed a discrepancy of 762 riders," Ferguson said.

The next day, Ferguson said, the ride was stopped by state examiners and plain clothes highway patrolmen while an inventory was taken of used and unused tickets.

Ferguson said that from the used tickets it was discovered that tickets sold previous days had been re-sold and deposited in the ticket containers that day.

He said his office consulted with fair officials and the ride owner, O.D. Hopkins Engineering Co., and that the company hired a private detective agency to check ride employees.

Ferguson said the detective agency confirmed findings of his office, and the fair board is awaiting a settlement figure on lost income from the ride owner.

55 Ohio Counties Receive Subsidies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Joseph Ferguson said Thursday that 55 Ohio counties have received criminal cost state subsidies totaling $120,518 to cover August expenses.

The subsidy is for convicted felons sentenced to a state institution who can not afford to pay for their own defense.

Reject Increase In Bread Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council today denied a request by the nation's bakers for a price increase for bread.

"There should be no rise in bread prices at this time," the council said in an announcement.

The American Bakers Association asked for a general increase in bread prices, contending that recent sales of wheat to the Soviet Union have triggered higher flour costs.

"This has to be remedied," he declared.

The report, which Municipal Judge Manuel Rucker of Shaker Heights said is likely to be revised before being presented to the legislature, calls for consolidation of the state's municipal, county and common pleas courts.

Municipal and county courts would become divisions of the common pleas courts, which would be separated into two categories, general sessions and district courts.

All parttime courts, mayor's courts and police courts would be abolished upon expiration of the terms of the incumbent judges. Non-contested traffic and small claims cases would be heard by specially trained court-appointed referees.

Modernized Court System For Ohio Proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A committee's preliminary report on ways to consolidate Ohio's court system.

Judge Rupert Doan of Hamilton County told a meeting of municipal and county judges he annual salary for all local judges should be set at $35,000.

Salaries now vary according to population of the areas and range from about $16,000 to $23,000. The initial committee report presented Thursday suggested that all judges receive equal pay.

Doan said judges probably will receive only salary increases that are in line with federal Wage Board guidelines.

"We will take what we can get," he said.

Doan noted that while Ohio is one of the largest states, it ranks 36th nationally in compensation to the judiciary.

"This has to be remedied," he declared.

County Board Rejects Partial TV Local District Transfer

The Pickaway County Board of Education voted Thursday night to reject the resolution submitted by the Franklin County Public School District to transfer a portion of the Teays Valley Local School District to Madison Local School District in Franklin County. The territory in question, also part of the Pickaway County Schools, lies in Franklin County.

The resolution submitted by the Madison Local Schools District, Franklin County Schools was:

Whereas, the Madison Local Board of Education, Franklin County, Ohio, is desirous of having the school district line coincide with the Franklin-

Pickaway County line in the southern part of the Madison Local School District, and

Whereas, the transfer of two parcels of land from the Teays Valley Local School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, to the Madison Local School District in Franklin County, Ohio, would create a common school district line and county line for both school districts, now therefore,

Be it resolved, that the Madison Local Board of Education, hereby requests the transfer of two parcels of land, the original J. W. Moody parcel of 19.67 acres and the H. W. Pack parcel of 4.52 acres, from the Teays Valley Local School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, to the Madison Local School District, Franklin County, Ohio.

The board based its decision on the fact that school district boundaries overlap county lines. To even the territory in this area according to county lines would be inconsistent with other school district configurations, whereby, portions of the Pickaway County Schools extend into Fairfield, Hocking, and Franklin Counties and portions of Ross and Fayette Counties extend into Pickaway County. The citizens residing in the area in question were canvassed and they expressed the desire to remain in Pickaway County School District.

The board also agreed to enter into an agreement with the Columbus City Schools to serve as the Fiscal Agent for Pickaway County in the Right to Read Program, a federal funded project. The project will provide funds to finance workshops to assist teachers in improving the reading skills of all students in the public schools.

Superintendent Edward Martin reported to the board that all teaching positions in the county schools have been filled and reported on the student enrollment. The Pickaway County Schools has a record enrollment of 6892 students. Teays Valley Local School District has 2701, Logan Elm Local School District has 2332, and Westfall Local School District has 1859. Superintendent Martin predicts that the enrollment will exceed 7000 students by the time that enrollments cease if the pattern continues as it has in recent years.

In other action, the board authorized the superintendent to submit a program to the State Department of Education for funding an Adult Basic Education Program in cooperation with the Orient State Institute. The purpose of the project is to raise the educational level of those people now in the institution and are ready for dismissal to the 8th grade level of achievement. Any citizen in Pickaway County, regardless of age, who has dropped out of school prior to completing the 8th grade will be eligible to enroll in the program.

If the need for non-institute students exceeds 8 or more, a satellite class may be held in a facility other than the institute. Estimated cost of the project is approximately $10,000 per annum. All monies used will come through the State Department of Education and financed by federal funds.

The board approved a curriculum study this school year in the science and math areas which will be conducted by county office staff and local school personnel.

Board members present were: Mr. Wendell Evans, Nelson Jones, Harold Lindsey, and John Little.

Mafia's Management Tops, Manpower Expert Reports

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Top executives might improve the way they run major corporations by studying the inner workings of the Mafia, a management expert says.

A. J. Tasca, manager of corporate manpower development for Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn., said Thursday that one reason the Mafia has survived for seven centuries is its unique organization.

While large American corporations such as IBM and Control Data have put in up to 10 levels of management as they've grown, Tasca said, the Mafia has stuck with only three or four levels.

He explained that by the time a decision filters through 10 management levels, "the information is so massaged that you question it."

Tasca, 34, who was born in Sicily and has studied the Mafia all his life, spoke at a one-day conference here sponsored by the Center for Organization and Manpower Development, part of the School of Business at California State University, San Jose.

"American corporations tend to become happy with themselves as they get bigger ... and sometimes end up pushing products that were out of style five years ago," he said.

To the contrary, the Mafia "has a minimum of bureaucracy and a fast reaction to changing conditions ... They appear always to be growing and changing."

In private business, Tasca said, there is "a lot of nepotism and favoritism," and a lot of interaction between top executives and employees. He said this often leads to decisions being made on the basis of emotion and not performance.

But in the Mafia, the boss does not fraternize with his employees—just with other bosses—and his decisions are much more businesslike Tasca said. A boss can get an initial job for a member of his family, Tasca said, "but he has to perform or the organization will do away with him," he said this also apply to the Mafia hierarchy.

Chief Manfred Schreiber told a news conference his forces opened fire on the guerrillas because the Israeli hostages were "practically doomed when Israel rejected demands of the terrorists."

However, it was still not established whose bullets killed the Israelis.

Schreiber, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the West German interior minister, and other officials held a five-hour news conference to give an account of the shootout.

They gave a detailed chronology of events and also said: —In the first round of negotiations at the Israeli quarters, Genscher, Schreiber and Interior Minister Bruno Merk of Bavaria offered to be hostage replacements for the Israelis, but the Arabs refused.

—A representative of the Arab League and the head of the Egyptian Olympic team tried to intervene with the guerrillas but made no progress.

—Police consulted with chemical experts and ventilation maintenance men on a plan to pump tear gas into the building, but the plan was rejected as too risky.

2 Youths Hurt In Explosion At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Danny Palmer, 21, one of two Cincinnati youths burned in an explosion and fire at a house in suburban Greenhills, was listed in critical condition today at General Hospital, John Gilman Jr., 19, was reported as serious.

Greenhills Fire Chief Nick Bates said the two were working on a gas heater Thursday when the blast occurred. He said it was apparently caused by leaking gas.

A Springfield Township Police Department spokesman said the youths ran onto a road in front of the house and flagged down a patrolman from a nearby county park. He said several motorists had seen the youths but passed them by.

Bates said the heater was going to be used for a den being made in the basement of the house. About $20,000 damage was done to the residence.

nue production," Ehrlichman said the value-added tax appears to be "less desirable than some other alternatives."

One reason, he said, is that some states depend heavily on their own sales taxes.

Another alternative to secure revenue to cut property taxes would be to hold the line on government spending. The President believes, Ehrlichman reported, that he can "operate all necessary federal functions without any additional costs."

Claim Nixon Cold-Shoulders U.S. Protestants Leadership

NEW YORK (AP) — An interdenominational periodical charges that President Nixon has been "cold-shouldering the leadership" of the country's main line Protestant churches.

The issue has been smoldering among church officials for months, several of whom have been rebuffed in efforts to confer with the President. Only recently, however, have they protested openly.

The latest complaint came in the September issue of Tempo Newsletter, monthly publication of the National Council of Churches, including most of the nation's major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox bodies.

It says previous presidents met readily and frequently with church leaders on public matters involving moral concerns, but that Nixon generally has refused to see them, despite recurrent requests.

Declaring that "a kind of heavy curtain of silence" has been lowered each time a delegation of ecumenical leaders sought a "give-and-take meeting" with him, the official interchurch publication adds:

"Save for one or two early occasions when ecumenical leaders were asked to preach at White House services of worship, the President has permitted himself to have little or no contact with them."

The complaint came in the wake of similar objections by several individual church leaders, who have tried unsuccessfully to see the President to present their churches' views on the Vietnam war.

Many of the major denominations, as well as their interdenominational cooperative organizations, have been sharply critical of the administration's continuation of the war.

Blue Cross Rate Increase Bid Rejected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Insurance Thursday rejected a $1.25 million rate increase requested by Blue Cross of Central Ohio.

Insurance Department Director Kenneth E. DeShetler, in announcing the rate increase rejection, attacked Blue Cross for a "lack of concern for the welfare of subscribers."

Blue Cross of Central Ohio filed a request May 26 to increase rates of direct pay subscribers under age 65, affecting subscribers in 28 Ohio counties.

"Blue Cross of Central Ohio has failed to make a real effort to control hospital costs. Blue Cross has failed to take into consideration the effect which its efforts to reduce hospital costs would have on direct pay subscribers' rates. I find that the increase is other than fair, lawful and reasonable," he said.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Housewife Happy Being A Housewife

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old housewife with two small children. Now that my older child is in school all day I have time to watch some of the morning talk shows on television. Lately I have noticed that these shows have become a soapbox for Women's Libbers who tell me what an empty life I'm living. "The dull, dreary housewife, tied to dirty dishes, diapers and the family laundry." They say I have no chance to express myself or use my imagination.

I have never felt that I was "tied" to anything. I have a car in my driveway, and even if I didn't, I have two healthy legs to get me where I want to go.

As for expressing myself and using my imagination, I have done that in the best possible way. I've made my own draperies and curtains and I've even upholstered my own furniture. I dream up a different menu for nearly every meal, and I express myself plenty where my children are concerned.

I am happy as a homemaker, and I wish women who find fulfillment in other ways would quit downgrading me. Since this wonderful country of ours began, the source of its strength has been the family. The wife and mother has made the house a home and held the family together.

Sign me "HAPPY IN OLYMPIA"

DEAR HAPPY: I'll tell Gloria and Betty, and Germaine and Bella.

DEAR ABBY: When I was in my teens I gave birth to a baby boy which I gave up for adoption because I was not married. My husband knows all about it and has never held it against me.

We have two darling daughters and are considering adopting a baby boy. We don't want another child unless we are sure of getting a boy.

I keep thinking maybe the reason I want a boy is to replace the one I gave away. If this is true, it wouldn't be fair to the child. My husband is satisfied with our family, but I am the one who wants a boy. Please help me decide.

UNDECIDED
DEAR UNDECIDED: If you have any doubts or misgivings about your reasons for wanting to adopt a child, you'd be wise not to.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 46 years insisted on renting the small house which is situated on our property to two young women. He did this last year in spite of my strongest objections. He doesn't need the money. His checking account is in four figures and he has an adequate pension. I also have my pension.

I made that little house habitable, but to hear him talk, he did it all himself. Unconscionable braggart!

Those women are in and out all day long and my husband enjoys looking at them far too much to suit me. I knew this would happen when he rented to them. At the time I couldn't decide between divorce or suicide. Now I have made up my mind. It's divorce. Why should I die and leave him living?

I'm not in need of any advice. I just want someone to tell me I have made the right choice. Have I?

SUFFERED ENOUGH
DEAR SUFFERED: You have.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ASHAMED TO ASK IN MILLWALKEE: Go ahead and ask. There are no "stupid" questions—only stupid people who remain ignorant because they're too ashamed to ask.

Oceans, Too?

Transportation may not soon come to a complete standstill in any part of the world. But it is progressing in that direction. First it was the crush of automobiles which threatened to make parkways and turnpikes meaningless. Then it was the growth of air travel which turned modern metropolitan terminals into nightmares of delay and congestion. Can the world's sea lanes be far behind?

Not if accident statistics can be relied upon as a clue. During World War II, when German submarines roamed almost at will across the oceans, the United States lost 442 ships to the U-boats. In 1970, the one-year total of ships lost through collision and other mishaps reached 352. An average of one ocean-going vessel a day is lost to the sea.

U.S. ports are host to one million vessels a year. In the year ended June 30, 1971, 579 ships either collided or floundered in U.S. waters. Forty-five lives were lost and the damage exceeded $200 million.

Yes, even ocean surfaces are becoming overcrowded.

Work Creates Substance

Citizens of India are not exactly accustomed to the leisurely life. So it was perhaps with little more than a shrug of resignation that they listened to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, on the occasion of India's 25th anniversary of independence, warn that the populace should be prepared for "a hard and leisureless life for a long time to come."

The realism of those words is brought into sharp focus by the current drought which has devastated once again India's hopes for agricultural self-sufficiency.

But there is something to be said for the political leader who reminds a nation that the good things in life, if they are ever to come, will be produced by nothing but hard work.

Too often those in the advanced industrial nations succumb to an attitude which seems to hold they are entitled to the good life because it is built into the system. It is not.

The ability and willingness to work are still the prerequisites to a better future, as well as the maintenance of the present level of prosperity.

World Of Broken Compacts

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

MUNICH — The decision of some Olympic teams to boycott an expatriate service at Dachau, the former Nazi concentration camp near Munich, on the ground that the past had best be forgotten, made excellent sense. For if there is to be any hope that the human race will become more human in the future, not only sports but other vast areas of life must be depoliticized.

The fair city of Munich itself with its rebuilt classical architecture, its new subway and gumstich pedestrian malls, offered a new beginning in which old memories could be expunged. There was no Hitler here to snub black, brown or yellow athletes. Unfortunately, with the sudden eruption of the "Rhodesian question," we have had a reminder that trust, which is basic to the social compact, is still a long way from attainment.

I had come here from Miami Beach, where the compact between the yippie and zippie dissenters and very generous Miami Beach city fathers was rudely broken by the "trashing" on the last day of the convention. In return for the privilege of squatting in Flamingo Park, it was understood that the demonstrators would discharge their protests I got a scornful answer. The Asians had no rights, for they had been willing pawns of "imperialist" exploiters. Well, in that case, shouldn't Britain be expected to open its doors to the expelled Uganda Asians on more than a temporary basis? After all, they had British passports. Oh, no, you must "understand" that the British economy is depressed; the dock workers have their own rights to jobs.

What is disheartening is that the world no longer operates on any coherent theory of individual rights. Such things as property rights and the right to asylum mean nothing if they get in the way of national purposes.

I can see the black case against Rhodesia, where property qualifications reinforce a prejudice against allowing poor black people to vote. But if I am asked to "understand" all things for historical reasons, I can see the reason that a white settler in the lower geographical third part of Africa should fear majority rule. What has happened to deprive Indian shopkeepers in Kenya and Uganda of their rights could happen to anybody in a world in which the individual is at the mercy of politicians.

So far as games are concerned, individuals should be allowed to compete as individuals as well as nationals: an athlete, like an artist, has a right to free expression of his skills. That has been denied at this year's Olympics, where a compact has been ignored. In a world in which compacts are like piecrusts, made to be broken, what does this portend for all our new treaties, whether on strategic arms limitation or free movement at the Berlin Wall? Willy Brandt and Richard Nixon still have a long way to go in their efforts to make the world safe for negotiation.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A common assumption among Americans, especially those who believe strongly in the power of advertising and marketing, is that the seller rather than the buyer dictates trends.

This notion is sometimes fostered by the ad industry itself, and as if to prove their contention, copywriters can offer numerous examples of spectacular success by products of dubious value, heavily promoted.

But now and then industry's faith in its own powers is shattered as, from time to time, consumers assert themselves and buy what they darn well please.

None other than the automotive Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—learned this lesson in recent years as they attempted to sell big cars to buyers who were determined to buy small.

As a result, the penetration of the domestic market by foreign companies reached 16 per cent before the tide was turned.

The Big Three were forced to adjust to consumer preferences, to build compact cars despite lower profit margins on such units.

Something roughly comparable seems to have occurred in the market for new homes. As the price of conventional housing continues to rise, mobile homes are slicing off what appears to be a permanent segment of the market.

The median price of a new one-family home now is more than $25,000, or 11 per cent more than in 1967. A fully equipped mobile home can be purchased for less than half that.

As recently as 1960, only 103,700 mobile units were shipped. By 1965 the number had more than doubled. Last year more than 490,000 units were shipped. This year the total most likely will exceed 500,000.

About one of every three single family home sales now involves a mobile unit, a rate that housing officials concede may represent a permanent change in the market.

The significance of this trend can be measured in numerous ways. Certainly it means that many Americans have accepted a different life style. It means also that the appearance and tax base of some towns is changing.

Perhaps most significant is the evidence that the buyer can shift with the times, can make up his own mind, assert himself and realize his demands without any encouragement.

In effect, the buyer led rather than permitted himself to be led. He demanded economical housing and he got it.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLL

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have "middle-age suspicion?"

If so, you are suffering from one of the commonest maladies of our times, but one which is rarely diagnosed, because it isn't ordinarily recognized by doctors as a medical entity any more than menopause in men is.

But the symptoms of "middle-age suspicion" are recognizable to most experienced personnel executives, marriage counselors and others dealing in the problems of mental health. It is a condition insidious in itself that tends to be self-perpetuating and is quite difficult to isolate and combat.

It affects both men and women, although it is perhaps more often noticed in men.

What is "middle-age suspicion" and how can you tell if you have it?

"Middle-age suspicion" is a neurotic feeling of self-doubt and insufficiency shown by people in their middle years who begin to distrust and suspect the motives of others to a degree unjustified by the facts.

You should suspect yourself of being a victim of "middle-age suspicion" if many — or most — of the following things are true of you:

You are convinced that there is a conspiracy in the office to ease you out of your job or to keep your merit from being fully recognized.

You can't take criticism of any kind anymore without losing your temper.

Some of the younger men at the office, you feel, are poking fun at you behind your back.

You pick on other members of your family more than you used to.

You feel that every repair man you deal with is dishonest.

You may have lost one or more friends recently — or at least offended them — by impugning their loyalty.

More and more you mope about this being a "dog eat dog" world and that every man is determined to take advantage of every other man.

Any fresh sign of the ravages of time — the thinning of your hair, the loss of a tooth, the appearance of a new wrinkle — causes you to become morose for days.

What can a man do if he recognizes these signs of "middle-age suspicion" in himself? Well, if he's still got any honesty and common sense left, he might look in the mirror and make himself a little speech:

"Listen, old-timer, there is nothing wrong with the world that wasn't wrong with it yesterday. What's really wrong with yourself is you. You're full of self-pity, just like a small boy who threatens to eat worms, then die, and make everybody sorry they picked on him. But acting like a coward won't make you any younger, so snap out of it — and go back to being a man again."

Mao Seeks To Keep China In Continuous Revolution

The Circleville Herald, Fri. Sept. 8, 1972
Circleville, Ohio

Editor's Note—The great Chinese Cultural Revolution appears to have eliminated the political foes of Mao Tse-tung and furthered his goal of a permanent revolution. But what of the future? Can Maoist ideas be continued? Prize winning historian Barbara W. Tuchman discusses these questions in the following last of four articles based on a recent, extended visit to the Mainland.

By BARBARA W. TUCHMAN
Written for The Associated Press

If Mao's place in history depended solely on his leadership of China's belated revolution—in which he had many associates now lost in the shadows of Mao-worship—that place would be great but not unique.

His truly original contribution has been his concept of on-going revolution; his recognition that achievement of power is not the end, but on the contrary the peril, because success solidifies. Thus every revolution ends in a new ruling class and every ruling class, by gripping the status quo, ends in Revisionism, the final sin. It is not the state that withers away but Revolution, and with it the goal of Socialism.

To recognize this principle is open to anyone with a sense of history, but Mao is probably the first chief of state to act upon it: to uproot and destroy his own power structure in order to re-start the revolution and keep it moving toward its goals.

This was the purpose and meaning of that mysterious frenzy—as it came through to the West in bewildering flashes—which swept China in 1966-69 and is now sanctified as the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. Deliberately set in motion by Mao and at least some like-thinking colleagues, it was an act of extraordinary risk that could have wrecked the system.

It activated the fanaticism of youth, which can be activated to anything, and set it rampaging through society, beating, persecuting, shaming, and leaving a wake of violence, ruin and suicides. In the course of purging Liu Shao-chi (then president of China) and breaking up the settled bureaucracy which he supposedly headed, the movement also ignited a dangerous opposition of the "ultra left" whose object, more or less, was to shatter the whole establishment and achieve socialism through anarchy. Factions arose and fought with spears and stones when they could not get arms. Only because the army remained loyal as the arm of the party was Mao able to apply the brakes, regain control and begin to reconstruct his government.

At present the domestic surface is calm: the vicious turmoil of only a few years ago seems to have left the public curiously unaffected.

To judge either the degree of damage wrought by the Cultural Revolution or the degree of renewed revolutionary impetus is not possible for a superficial visitor, but some of the cost is obvious. Although most of the purged bureaucracy below the top are said to have returned to their jobs after "re-education," the government has undoubtedly been weakened, both within the central Politburo and in its authority over the provinces. The ultra left, angered by the return of the bureaucrats, is far from dead, and power struggles within the party and Politburo apparently continue.

Death Penalty Supported

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Californians favor retention of the death penalty by 66 to 24 per cent — the biggest margin in 16 years it has conducted public opinion polls on the issue, the California Poll said Thursday.

The other 10 per cent of the 1,032 persons interviewed face to face in the July 31-Aug. 6 poll had qualified opinions or no opinions on whether to keep or do away with capital punishment, pollster Mervin D. Field said.

Public interest in the issue is great in California where an initiative constitutional amendment on the November ballot would restore the death penalty which the state Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional last Feb. 18.

In the poll completed last month, those interviewed were asked the general question of whether they favor "doing away with the death sentence, or do you feel that the death sentence should be kept as a punishment for serious crimes?"

At the same time it is plain that the ideas of the Cultural Revolution have officially prevailed, at least in general lip service. "Reliance on the masses" is the password, and the painful process of "Struggle, Criticism and Transformation," which refits a Revisionist or other erroneous thinker for service to the people, must still be endured. Struggle, Criticism and Transformation—which emerges as SCAT in my abbreviation—is a great invention. For purposes of rehabilitation, it means repudiation of "Liu Shao-chi crimes" followed by a change of heart through self-criticism, but it can also be used to cover up any situation in which Maoist control is not fully re-established or intra-mural struggle continues.

The campaign against Revisionism remains fierce. While Stalin's purges killed men, in China it is the idea which must be destroyed; must be dragged out, exposed, trampled and stamped out. This requires unrelenting denunciation which the people repeat as dutifully as a congregation chanting responses to the minister.

Every negative result in the past is explained as caused by the influence of Liu Shao-chi, and equally any current negative development—a poor harvest, an outbreak of disease, foreign threat or the persistence of dissenters escaping to Hong Kong—is the undercover work of "Liu Shao-chi swindlers and criminals" who are somehow able to sway the true-thinking masses toward wrong-doing.

The people are being educated in a conspiracy theory of evil, the easiest thing of all to believe in. It leaves party and leaders irresponsible for error or failure.

Under tall trees on the old campus of Peking—or Peita—University, founded in 1898, we were told that only three or four of the faculty had been permanently eliminated as counter-revolutionaries because these individuals had refused to admit to "crimes" and therefore could not take a new start.

Since 1970 the re-opened universities have been recruiting and enrolling only students from the masses, that is, from the ranks of workers, peasants and soldiers.

The new policy presumes that working class experience of actual jobs in various fields fits these young men to make better use of an education for purposes of serving the revolution. If they have graduated from Junior Middle School, which finishes at about age 16, and have held a job for a few years, they are admitted on the recommendation of their work unit without any qualifying examination.

Enrollment on the new basis is so far very limited: Peita with a normal capacity of 10,000 and a faculty of 2,100, admitted 1,000 students in 1972 for a three-year course. Throughout the country, the total number of university students now enrolled is estimated by professional China-watchers in Hong Kong at less than half a million. Grades have been abolished as a bourgeois device to exclude the masses.

The risk is great. Meanwhile at the top successive purges have left a vacuum below the aged veterans of the formative years: Mao, Chou En-lai and Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, age 75, who is now filling the place of Lin Biao. The succession is undecided, the factions still at odds and the threat of Soviet attacks looms over the border. Fear of invasion or nuclear attack preoccupies Peking and explains the obsessive emphasis on arms in the domestic propaganda.

Under such pressures from inside and out, can the Revolution be kept green, especially after the Old Guard goes? Under new men, will the insistent nature of a ruling class assert itself in China as anywhere else?

In quest of a more informed judgment than my own, I asked a foreign diplomat with long experience of China if he felt he was dealing in Peking with a stable government control of the situation. "In control, yes; stable, no," he replied. "The storms that shake the system are part of it."

Set Bargaining Vote
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Employees of the Evans Packing Co., Gallipolis, Ohio, will vote in a collective bargaining election Sept. 12, according to the National Labor Relations Board regional office.

One New York housewife, told of the impending demise of "The French Chef," frowned and summed the whole thing up this way: "Well, I hate to see it go. It was nice while it lasted."

She has also won television's Emmy award. But it won't pay the bills.

By Pickaway County Library Staff

Mrs. Nelle Francis reviews some of the new novels recently acquired in the library.

"The Shape of Illusion" by William W. Barrett is a story involving an unusual painting that seems to have a strange "pull" for those who view it. It is a painting by an unknown boy of the Renaissance. It depicts Christ leaving the palace of Pilate after his beating by an angry mob. Our hero is sent on a mission to the supposed home of the artist to find out any information he can about its origin. This interesting and picturesque old medieval town in Germany where the painting was made is celebrating a passion play. Here the American painter is able to gather information that helps explain the unusual painting. Good reading.

In Violet Weingarten's "A Woman of Feeling" a middle-aged parent is so confused as she tries to understand her own children and the children of her friends. They belong to a generation that lives in slum pads, scorns material things, and either refuses to marry or marries a black. This is a soul disturbing experience. In her own younger days, during the days of Senator McCarthy, it was belonging to some organization, perhaps Un-American, that was the in-thing, eventually she comes to realize that the children do have many good moments, and is able to accept and try to do something about youth unrest.

The time is 1916 during the border campaign between Mexico and the United States, in "Tin Lizzie Troop" by Glendon Swarthout. Each month a new detachment is sent to Section Number Two to patrol and protect. Here, in the heat and under the command of the deadly C. O. at Dinkie, the detachment is trained. There is humor in the situation when the main detachment of six men arrives in two Tin Lizzies with all their equipment and six Morgan horses towed by the cars. These young men are from some of the richest families of the East. To be sure, they do not speak the same language as their C.O., but the humorous and sad happenings keep the reader's interest.

The scene of "Mrs. Starr Lives Alone" by Jon Godden is set in English Country. The widow lives alone in a somewhat isolated section. She is a glibly motherly individual. When she finds two hippies have taken over her home and her, we live in a state of horror. Not a book that makes for comfortable reading, but we are given a clear picture of what can well happen in this day and age.

"Firecrest" by Victor Canning is a story of intrigue involving a governmental department. There are clandestine meetings, unscrupulous investigations and retaliations. The department tries to learn where one of its members had hidden some very valuable papers. In a rather unusual way, this information is learned through hypnosis, using an unusual ruse, Firecrest. A different kind of suspense story—fast moving. Not recommended for a steady diet, but gives a dash of spice.

Storms Hit Wide Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms erupted across the Midwest and Great Plains early today as a continued flow of cool air plummeted temperatures into the 30s in the northern-central states.

While the East and West had generally pleasant weather, the possibility of trouble in the East took the form of Hurricane Dawn, which was burning up the sea with 80 mile-per-hour winds. The storm was about 240 miles off Cape Hatteras, N.C., and moving toward New England, but was expected to swing northeast and away from the mainland during the day.

Extensive showers and thunderstorms from the southern Plains to the Great Lakes were mostly mild. However, Kansas, Missouri and Southern Illinois were drenched in some places. St. Louis was soaked by more than 2 1/2 inches of rain, most of which fell in one hour Thursday night.

Flash-flood warnings were in effect for portions of Kansas and Missouri. Other storms hit central Colorado and small hail pelted Lubbock, Tex.

Indiana, Wisconsin Entrants Win Miss America Prelims

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The second round of preliminary competition in the Miss America pageant produced a pair of opposites: a swimsuit winner who can't swim and a talent winner who's already proved her talent professionally.

Miss Indiana, 23-year-old Rebecca Sue Graham of Indianapolis won the swimsuit contest in the Thursday night preliminaries here and Miss Wisconsin, Terry Anne Meeuwssen, took the talent prize.

Miss Meeuwssen, also 23 and a student at St. Norbert College, sang two years professionally with The New Christy Minstrels and has had her own nightclub act.

She received the heaviest applause of the evening when she belted out "He Touched Me," which was called "She Touched Me" in the short-lived Broadway musical, "Draht The Cat."

When asked backstage later if she thought she had an advantage because of her experience over the other contestants, she said she might have been less nervous than the others, many of whom are in their teens and have had little performing experience.

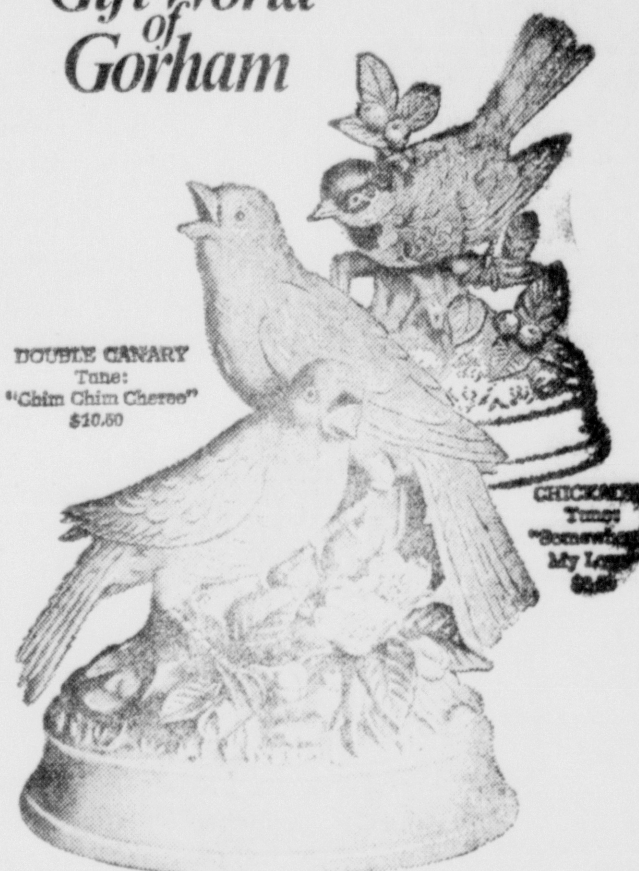

"I think I have an advantage over girls who've never sung before a large audience," she said.

Miss Meeuwssen, who is 5'8, weighs 120 pounds and measures 36-25-36, was also asked if she thought the Miss America Pageant exploits women, a contention of women's liberation groups.

She said she had received $2,000 in scholarships and been

Haig Jumped To Army Vice Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is promoting Maj.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr.,
Henry Kissinger's top assistant, to the rank of four-star general and is naming him Army vice chief of staff, the White House said Thursday.

The President's action continues the meteoric rise in military and government ranks of the 47-year-old Haig, who joined Kissinger's staff in January 1969 as a colonel.

Haig will replace Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr. as vice chief of staff. Palmer's new assignment was not disclosed.

The unusual action of promoting a two-star general to the four star rank—skipping the rank of lieutenant general—is not unprecedented, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in responding to questions after making the announcement.

Haig's nomination as general requires Senate confirmation, but the assignment as vice chief of staff does not.

For 18 months after Nixon took office, Haig served as senior military adviser to Kissinger. Then he was named deputy assistant to the President for national security affairs, and as such has served as Kissinger's right-hand man.

GOP Plans State Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —
More than 800 Ohio Republican leaders will gather here Sept.
20 for the party's one-day state convention.

The main speaker for the event, to be held at the RKO Palace Theater, has not been announced. However, a GOP spokesman said Wednesday it will probably be a person of national prominence, but declined to elaborate.

Other sources identified the speaker as Vice President Spiro
Agnew.

Delegates and alternates will include Sens. Robert Taft Jr. and William Saxbe along with statewide GOP office holders and congressional and legislative candidates.

Sessions will be held at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Survival

Medieval knights felt invincible when they strode forth to battle in a suit of armor. Unfortunately, more protection meant less mobility.
Finally armor became so cumbersome that it was relegated to museums—the useless antique was discarded—not the man under the metal coverall. He had to adapt to the change!

How many of our ideas and customs have become useless? The world is not static and even some values change. What we cherish must be genuine. That goes for Faith, too. A shallow faith cannot survive the twentieth century—or any era for that matter. But the Christian faith is not superficial, or outmoded! It survives, and continues to reach millions each Sunday—proof that Christianity is not destined for the museum.

Cincinnati Police Should Use Bikes, Councilman Says

CINCINNATI (AP) — City officials are considering equipping some Cincinnati policemen with bicycles for patrolling their beats.

Cincinnati Councilman Charles Taft made the recommendation Thursday for bicycle patrols to City Manager E. Robert Turner.

Taft said he believed that bicycles, along with scooters which are already used, might help bring a closer relationship between policemen and residents in their beat areas and also help cut crime.

Taft cited the example of Baltimore, Md., where crime has been reduced 50 per cent in areas where police ride bicycles.

Check Building Sites Thoroughly Before Buying

BY

Resources, Lands & Soil

Everyone has seen advertisements on the television about being careful not to buy a piece of swamp in Florida, or desert out in Nevada or Arizona, check out mail order land sales and say, "Well, I'm an intelligent person, you couldn't catch me in a deal like that." But a lot of people are doing just that, buying acres of swamp in Ohio, in Pickaway County. Places that are high and dry in August may have water standing on them in April and May.

Investigate the land before buying. Don't just go out and look at the hill top view, or the trees growing on the property, or the close availability of a stream.

Check out the slope. If the land rises more than 12 feet for every hundred feet, this means trouble for septic tanks. The cost of installation will be high, and there will be the problem of lateral movement of the effluent, which will seep out onto your front yard and not downward as intended. The seepage brings about health hazards, odor, flies, germs, and the possibility of contaminating nearby surface waters.

Trees present other problems or rather indicate them. In Ohio, if a tract of trees has been left on a farm usually it's because the land is not profitable to grow corn or beans. There are three governing factors in this: slope, stoniness, which is a good indication that it is shallow to bed rock, and poor drainage.

Large stones will not hamper the effectiveness of the septic tank, but will increase the price of installation. These stones have to be removed to maintain the proper grade for the tile leach field system. Rockiness or fragments on the surface is a good indication that the area may be shallow to shale or sandstone bedrock. In areas gently sloping, where the rise of the land is less than 12 feet for 100 feet, bed rock is very good for a house foundation. There isn't much chance of it slipping or slumping. However, on steeper slopes, slipping and slumping may cause building hazards.

It is quite risky to try and operate a septic tank in an area that is shallow to bed rock. At least four feet of material is required above the bed rock as a filtering agent to the effluent discharge from the tank. For a properly operating septic tank, bed rock should be at least seven feet below the surface. Shallow bed rock creates a perched water table. Since water cannot penetrate the rock, it flows laterally, effluent from a septic tank will do the same, and emerge from the ground onto the surface creating the above mentioned health problems.

Drainage is a major factor in considering a lot of ground. Take a spade when looking for a lot of land, and dig a hole. If the top soil is black or grey, chances are it is Brookston, or Crosby, poorly drained soils. A predominance of grey colors is due to water being present in the soil for long periods of the year and indicates poor drainage. On the other hand, red or brown colors indicates a well drained soil, and septic tanks stand a better chance of functioning properly.

Everyone loves a stream near his house, for aesthetic and recreational uses. But don't build next to it in a flood plain, that is the flat area adjacent to the stream. In most cases this is subject to flooding nearly every spring. Away from the stream, a slight rise can usually be noticed. This is a terrace, or old flood plain from hundreds or thousands of years ago. Usually this area will flood only in times of major flooding.

Another problem people face is building in a drainage way. The area may look perfectly dry unless it is after a recent rain storm. Look around, is the site at the base or between slopes. Is there a natural gradient from surrounding land, all seeming to dip towards the proposed site. Then it's in a drainage way. This soil will usually be darker and wetter than the surrounding soils. Again, look for those gray colors.

If planning to buy a plot of land, investigate it. Go to the library and do some reading, call people: the Department of Natural Resources, the Soil Conservation Service, the Health Department. The above agencies look at the site and give their recommendations and permission for septic tanks. Don't buy the land, and then apply for a health permit. The fee for a septic tank inspection is nominal compared to the price of the real estate.

The above agencies are at your disposal. Use them, and don't end up owning a swamp, flood plain, a piece of bed rock, or a cliff.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Hundreds of persons joined the grieving family of David Berger today in hoping his death during an Arab terrorist raid would lead the world to reduce violence and fear.

Services for the 28-year-old weightlifter, one of 11 Israeli representatives and athletes slain in the raid on the Olympic Village Tuesday in Munich, Germany, were scheduled for Fairmount Temple here.

Moments before arrival of the body in a casket draped with the Israeli flag, which bears the Star of David, a relative said the family hopes the nations of the world would join to stop such "senseless tragedy."

Vietnam Fighting At Tien Phuoc Still In Doubt

SAIGON (AP)—The Saigon command reported today that its troops abandoned the town of Tien Phuoc south of Da Nang, but an American general near the battlefield said South Vietnamese forces still held "most of the town" and launched a counterattack.

Brig. Gen. Harry H. Hiestand, deputy senior adviser in the northern 1st Military region, said at a forward regimental headquarters near Tien Phuoc that the North Vietnamese had only captured the district headquarters in the northeast corner of Tien Phuoc.

"The enemy are not going to get any further," Hiestand declared. He said the South Vietnamese counterattacked at 3 p.m. and were in the process of retaking the district headquarters.

The South Vietnamese in Saigon had announced a few hours earlier that Tien Phuoc fell to tank-led North Vietnamese forces. "The defenders retreated from the town to the east," said Lt. Col. Do Viet, a spokesman for the Saigon command. He said they linked up with hundreds of reinforcements that moved into the area on foot and by helicopters.

The government troops are now operating one to 6½ miles east and northeast of Tien Phuoc, Viet said.

There was no word on either military or civilian casualties in Tien Phuoc.

The U.S. Command said American helicopter gunships destroyed a third PT76 tank that helped lead the assault on the town of 33,000.

Two other tanks were knocked out on Wednesday.

Military sources said they believed the Communists hit Que Son and Tien Phuoc to force the South Vietnamese to stretch their forces thin.

The Saigon command pushed in about 2,000 troops to reinforce Tien Phuoc, field reports said. It had been defended by militiamen.

Ohio Flag Lowering Hit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A protest over the lowering of flags in Ohio after the assassinations of Israeli Olympic athletes has been lodged by the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations.

A telegram signed by Dr. M. T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the New York-based organization was delivered to Gov. John Gilligan's office Thursday, calling the action "ridiculous and insulting to all the people of Ohio and America at large."

Robert Tenenbaum, the governor's press secretary, said "the governor is not going to insult the memory of the victims by engaging in a political debate with anybody."

The Action Committee took the position that David Berger, a former Cleveland and one of nine hostages slain in the Munich gun battle, had allegiance both to the U.S. and Israel and that by his emigration he "helped create the frustrated and desperate Palestinians who committed the tragedy in Munich."

Young Berger was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Berger of Shaker Heights. He emigrated to Israel in 1970.

Road Signs Removed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Highway Director J. Philip Richey says steps are being taken to remove nearly 14,000 illegal billboards and advertising devices along Ohio's interstate and primary highway system.

Richey said Thursday that almost 500 "30-day removal notices" were mailed this week to sign owners who have failed to comply with legislation requiring permits for a signs located within 660 feet of the interstate or primary highway right-of-way.

Owners have 15 days after receiving the letters to apply for permits, he said, and if a permit is not applied for within 30 days, the state will begin removal of the signs and bill owners the cost.

The state law, which brought Ohio into conformance with the 1965 federal Highway Beautification Act, was enacted by the General Assembly last December. Permits do not prevent the future removal of signs, but delay removal action and ensure compensation to the sign owner, Richey said.

Both the White House, through presidential press aide Ronald L. Ziegler, and the State Department at first seemed to back this up with announcements that Hoffa had been granted a passport valid-

Hoffa Barred From Hanoi Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "private American citizens should not be involved in negotiations" concerning U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam, Secretary of State William P. Rogers has barred James Hoffa from visiting Hanoi.

Rogers' decision late Thursday afternoon was grounded officially on "procedural irregularities" in the way the former Teamsters union president obtained passport validation to travel to North Vietnam.

Other U.S. officials, however, indicated the administration wants to prevent a recurrence of the kind of publicity that followed previous tours of North Vietnam by private American citizens.

And, even while citing the irregularities said to have accompanied validation of Hoffa's passport, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray pointedly quoted Rogers as saying:

"The Secretary of State, among other things, does not believe private American citizens should be involved in negotiations with respect to release of the prisoners of war."

Rogers' decision came at the end of a day of confusing statements and confusing actions by Hoffa, the White House and the State Department.

It started with a report from Detroit that Hoffa, had been invited by North Vietnam's trade unions to visit Hanoi to talk with American POWs and discuss ways they might be released.

Both the White House, through presidential press aide Ronald L. Ziegler, and the State Department at first seemed to back this up with announcements that Hoffa had been granted a passport valid-

Bainbridge Man Dies In Crash

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — William Kelley, 31, of Bainbridge, was killed Thursday night on a rural road two miles north of Bainbridge when the car in which he was riding ran off a curve and rolled down an embankment.

Sheriff's deputies said Kelley apparently was thrown from the car and it rolled over on him. They said the driver, Joe Hobert, of Rt. 1, Bainbridge, was charged with driving while intoxicated.

The men were apparently on their way to another accident which happened a few feet away, when their accident occurred.

Under current U.S. law and regulations, travel by Americans to North Vietnam and a handful of other countries can be undertaken only if approved by authorized State Department officials.

The decision to bar Hoffa's trip, officials said, had nothing to do with his prison record. Hoffa was jailed nearly five years ago for jury-tampering and mail fraud. In an interview in Detroit Thursday night, Hoffa was asked why the trip was postponed.

He said the delay was due to a premature leak of the story and not due to any problem with the State Department. He said he still hopes to go.

Buy Voting Machines

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Butler County Commissioners will begin advertising soon for bids on 38 additional Coyle voting machines.

The commissioners voted Thursday to proceed with purchase of the machines after receiving a legal opinion by County Prosecutor Richard Wessel that "the Coyle ballot marking device is a legal device to be used in Butler County."

The county board of elections had recommended addition of the machines, but commissioners had deferred action because of a recent decision in Hardin County Common Pleas Court.

A judge there ruled that machines which rotate names of candidates only by precincts instead of by ballot were unconstitutional.

Coyle machines can rotate names within a precinct by programming additional information into a computer counting the card-type ballots, therefore, the Hardin County ruling would not necessarily apply to Butler County, Wessel said.

Ponder Dues Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A request to prohibit the Ohio Highway Department from cancelling union dues deductions for supervisory and other higher echelon personnel was taken under advisement Wednesday by Common Pleas Judge Jay Flowers.

LION'S SPEAKERS — Circleville Lion's Club president Don Flanders (right) presents Lion figurines to John Mountain, (center) and Bill Willis (left). The two men, representatives of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development, spoke on Ohio as a vacation spot to club members Thursday.

Lions Hear Development Plans From State Men

Dr. David C. Sweet, director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development, authorized John Mountain and Bill Willis, department personnel, to outline programs by which the Gilligan Administration is promoting "stay at home" vacations to Ohioans at the local Lion's Club meeting Thursday.

They said many of the new travel promotion programs involve radio and television public service material.

The radio-television section of the development department in cooperation with the department's travel and tourist bureau is introducing two (30 and 60 second) public service television announcements promoting tourism in the state, has produced 40 public service radio announcements to 113 Ohio radio stations publicizing major Ohio festivals and general tourist information, and is continuing to produce jointly with the Department of Natural Resources a weekly series of 5-minute public service radio programs promoting festivals and tourist attractions going to 79 Ohio radio stations. The series is now in its fourth week.

"Many of these new programs are a result of close coordination between several state departments," they said. "They are a direct response to Governor Gilligan's specific directive that the Departments of Economic and Community Development, Natural Resources and Highways work together in exploring the most effective use of state resources in travel promotion."

Echoing the theme of "Ohio Is Happening" are a variety of different brochures which are distributed free of charge on request from the department's publications center. These brochures include: festivals, bike journeys, calendars of events, auto tours and a general brochure on attractions in Ohio.

According to the men, a 64-page directory of Ohio's tourist attractions is currently under production by the three states departments. A calendar of events listing events from September through December will be ready for distribution next week, Sweet added.

They said that approximately 21,076 persons have stopped at the pilot Ohio tourist information center on Interstate 90 in Ashtabula County since it opened on May 26. The center is a joint project of the three state departments and the Ashtabula County Planning Commission. The center was opened to determine the feasibility of establishing permanent tourist information centers in the state, and Sweet said that apparently the center has been an overwhelming success.

Advertisements promoting "stay at home" vacations were run in several Ohio newspapers resulting in over 5,000 additional requests for tourist information on the state.

To promote Ohio tourism out-of-state, the department sponsored a familiarization tour for free lance travel writers, travel editors and syndicated travel columnists in May. He reported that the tour has already netted stories on Ohio in 15 major publications in the country.

The department's publications center has received approximately 400,000 phone and mail requests for tourist literature from January through

Different Breed Of Soldiers Complain About Army Pinup

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a different breed of soldier in today's Army.

The editors of "Soldiers," the Army's official magazine, had hoped to heighten the publication's appeal by featuring a monthly color pinup of a scantily clad female. Apparently, they figured wrong.

"You won't believe it," the editors wrote in the latest issue, but reader response was 48 per cent to 37 per cent against the cheesecake. They said the remaining 15 per cent who wrote in asked for an occasional male pinup. Possibly these requests came from WACs.

"I'm amazed," said Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of Army information, as he looked over a photo of the August pinup in a revealing red negligee. "Who could complain about that?"

But some of the troops, both men and women, are complaining in a flood of letters to the editors.

"It seems the military leadership, in order to make anything acceptable to its soldiers, feels it must make it easier to swallow by throwing in liberal doses of beer and naked women," wrote an enlisted man from Vietnam, one of the magazine's 240,000 readers.

An infantry captain from California objected to the "playmate" idea, saying it lacked "true professionalism."

Some male chauvinism remains, however, as an artillery specialist from Ft. Bliss, Tex., acknowledged: "Perhaps I am merely a male chauvinist but the monthly edition of your back cover certainly brightens the offices at this installation."

The letter-writing controversy was triggered by a WAC in Greece who wrote a stinging letter last May calling for a halt to the cheesecake.

"In this age of enlightenment," she wrote in defense of women's liberation, "you should be the first to see that these pictures reinforce the woman-as-an object mentality and are an insult to the many professional military women who are included in your readership."

The magazine's editor, Col. Lane Carlson, disagreed.

"As a woman," said the colonel in an interview, "I don't see anything wrong with a beautiful girl. We pick the prettiest, sweetest girls we can find and it's a plus for the magazine."

Col. Carlson said readers' response is not an accurate sampling and believes that today's American fighting men are no different from 25 years ago when nearly every GI's wall locker was adorned with a Betty Grable pinup.

As a Navy enlisted man assigned to the Pentagon wrote "Soldiers": "Were it not for such works of art, many a Navy man would have gone stir-crazy at sea, and many a soldier would have left his marbles in Vietnam."

In Barrow, Alaska, northernmost community in the United States, a medium-size watermelon sells for $8, National Geographic says.

Willie's Dillies

By BILL McGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Up to now, it's been dress rehearsal time but Friday night the big show moves to center stage, the lights go on, the fans flock into the arena and a bunch of dedicated young men take over the spotlight.

Hard, hot work has been the menu for the gridders but Friday night they get to the main course with dessert being served on a winning platter.

We don't think we have ever seen better conditioned squads than we have viewed in the county this year. All four schools have installed conditioning programs that are second to none and its bound to pay off as the season rolls along.

They're down to the boys who really want to play football and it should show up when they sink their cleats into the grassy turf.

We feel that we have four solid football teams in the county this year who will win their share of games.

But, win or lose, one thing is certain — They will give you everything they have and no one is going to be ashamed of them.

Don't forget the coaches who not only are building football teams but also have the responsibility of helping to develop character in these young men — It's a big job and sometime this is overlooked in the heat of battle.

They're our boys — We're proud of them — And hope to see all of you cheering them on when they make their bid for glory Friday night.

Our "fearless" forecast — Greyhounds can run but they won't be able to hide from a bunch of tough Tigers . . . Vikings will slow down the Cruisers . . . There won't be enough Aces in the deck when they invade the Braves' reservation . . . The Mustangs could knock the Rockets off course.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

Russia, U.S. Face In Cage Showdown

MUNICH (AP) — "The Russians are stronger than we are," U.S. Basketball Coach Hank Iba said. "We'll see if we're quicker than they are."

Quarter-milers Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett showed they were quicker than anyone else—but how they performed while standing still seemed to leave something to be desired.

"Well have a tough time keeping them off the backboards," Iba said of the Russians Thursday night after his kids demolished Italy 68-38 in the semifinal game which followed the Soviet Union's 67-61 triumph over Cuba. Both teams carry 8-0 records into Saturday night's gold medal final.

Matthews and Rod Milburn highlighted the best day the American track and field squad has had at these 26th Summer Olympic Games—but some of Matthews' and Collett's actions on the victory stand, somehow reminiscent of the black-gloved protest by U.S. athletes four years ago, angered some of the 80,000 Olympic Stadium spectators.

Milburn, from Opelousas, La., stood erect, facing the flag as the Star-Spangled Banner was played after he'd won the 110-meter hurdles in a world record-equalling 13.2 seconds. France's Guy Drut was second and Army Lt. Tom Hill of Knoxville, Tenn., got the bronze.

But after Matthews and Collett finished 1-2 in the 400-meter dash, Collett stepped up from his tier and joined Matthews on the No. 1 perch as the national anthem began. They stood sideways, facing away from the flag. Matthews with his arms folded and Collett with hands on hips, chatting occasionally as the music played on.

And when the ceremony ended, Matthews walked toward the stands, twirling the gold medal on its chain as the whistles and boos rolled down upon the field.

Was it a protest? "No way," replied Matthews, the speedster from Brooklyn, N.Y., who had been clocked in 44.66 seconds to the 44.80 by his silver-winning teammate from Santa Monica, Calif.

"The reason Collett came on the stand with me was not a protest," Matthews continued. "We consider ourselves the best quarter-milers in the world. If we wanted to protest we could do a better job than that."

But Collett wasn't as emphatic in his denial. When asked why he hadn't stood at attention during the national anthem, he said: "I couldn't do it with a clear conscience."

The other American medal of the day went to Kathy Hammond of Sacramento, Calif., who took the bronze in the women's 400 meters, setting a U.S. record with her clocking of 51.64 seconds. The gold went to East Germany's Monika Zehrt in an Olympic record 51.08. West German Rita Wilden got the silver.

Steve Prefontaine of Oregon was the only American qualifier for the finals of the 5,000 meters, coming in second in his heat.

Russia also got two golds in track and field Thursday as Nadezhda Chizhova won the women's shot put and Anatoly Bondarchuk took the men's hammer throw. East Germany's other gold came in the women's 200 meters, won by Renate Stecher in a world record-equalling 22.4 seconds.

A defense that has become a trademark of the American basketball team here—it has allowed an average of just 43 points a game—destroyed Italy's hopes of an upset.

The United States, unbeaten in 63 games since the sport was introduced to the Olympics in the 1936 Berlin Games, broke it open in the first half, taking a 13-10 lead and running up to 33-16 by the intermission and 51-24 in the second half.

It was another dismal day for Americans in the circular ring and another successful one in the square one.

In Greco-Roman wrestling, eight of 10 U.S. entries were eliminated, including 400-pound Chris Taylor of Dowagiac, Mich., who found himself amazingly hoisted into the air, then pinned by Czechoslovakia's Petr Kment.

The only Americans remaining in medal contention are Air Force Capt. Wayne Baughman of Universal City, Tex., despite a loss to West Germany's Guenter Kowalewski, and Jay Robinson of Spring Valley, Calif., who defeated Jesus Blanco of Argentina.

In boxing, middleweight Marvin Johnson and welterweight Ray Seales came back from first-round standing eight-counts—knockdowns according to Olympic standards—to score decisions by victories.

It puts four Americans—welterweight Jesse Valdez and bantamweight Ricardo Carreras are the others—into the semifinals and guarantees them medals.

Johnson, an 18-year-old left-hander from Indianapolis, recovered from a stunning straight right to the jaw by Alejandro Montoya in the first round, battering the Cuban with combinations in the second and outboxing him in the third round in-fighting to take a unanimous decision.

Seales, 22, from Tacoma, Wash., took a split decision over Cuba's Andres Molina despite taking a standing eight-count, in the first round. Molina lost an important point in that round when he was penalized for hitting with the heel of his glove. Seales recouped the rest of the way with accurate jabbing while the Cuban kept swinging wildly.

America's little big man in the decathlon—the grueling 10-event test—had much ground to make up as today's final began. Jeff Bennett, the 5-foot-8 Army specialist from Fort Hood, Tex., was in sixth place, 248 points back of East German front-runner Joachim Kirst, who had 4,345.

World champion John Williams of Cranston, Pa., and Iren Szidowska of Poland led the men's and women's divisions respectively after the first day of Olympic archery competition, the first since 1920.

Red Sox, White Sox In AL Clashes

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Never before has one game meant so much to so many Sox. In Boston, the Red Sox trounced the New York Yankees 10-4 Thursday night and moved into first place in the topsy-turvy American League East for the first time all season.

In Chicago, the White Sox whipped Oakland 6-0 in what Manager Chuck Tanner called "our biggest game of the year" and remained within hailing distance in the West Division three games behind the A's.

Elsewhere, Baltimore

crushed Detroit 9-0, Minnesota blanked Texas 4-0, Kansas City stopped California 6-0 and Milwaukee whipped Cleveland 7-1.

"It doesn't surprise me that we're in first place," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko. "I felt that any team with a hot streak would get into first place the way the division stands."

And the Red Sox have been red-hot. They've won three in a row and 11 of 13 and had their fans chanting "We're Number One" in the ninth inning while the scoreboard showed Baltimore walloping Detroit.

"I heard the fans yelling," said pitcher Sony Siebert, who hit one of Boston's three home runs, "but I wasn't watching the scoreboard and I didn't make the connection."

Neither was Tommy Harper, who, along with Rico Petrocelli, tagged a three-run homer.

The Red Sox didn't have much to worry about after Harper homered in the second inning and Siebert and Petrocelli connected in the sixth. They lead Detroit by one-half game, with Baltimore 1½ out and New York two back.

Baltimore, which had the first-inning blues against the Yankees (five runs) and Tigers (four runs) in the two previous games, turned the tables and erupted for four runs in the opening frame and three more in the second.

Detroit Manager Billy Martin pulled relief ace Fred Schermerman out of the bullpen for his third major league start but quickly yanked him after the Orioles opened with singles by Bobby Grich and Paul Blair and a two-run double by Tommy Davis.

Brooks Robinson and Blair later added two-run triples in support of Mike Cuellar's four-hit pitching.

Padres Swamp Reds In Twinbill

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Thank God we don't have to play the Padres in the playoffs," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson says.

San Diego swept a doubleheader from the Reds Thursday night, 2-0 and 5-1, cutting Cincinnati's National League West lead to 7½ games. But Anderson has other problems.

His chief worry has become right-hander Gary Nolan, 14½, the ailing star of the Reds' staff.

Nolan was upset over being lifted after one inning Thursday night when a homer by Leron Lee put San Diego ahead 1-0.

Nolan says his arm pains him. He was sidelined for 10 days in July and 26 days in August with arm problems. What pains him more is his belief that Anderson, pitching coach Larry Shepard and the Cincinnati brass believe his aches are imaginary.

"They say it's all in my head," Nolan said between games Thursday night. "You have pain in the head when you have a headache and I don't have a headache."

"No pitcher is going to lob the ball up to the plate and stay out there on the mound for me," Anderson responded. "I can throw as hard as he was throwing."

"Jerry Koonsman (of the New York Mets) has a sore arm," Nolan said, "and no one says his pain is imaginary. Why are they always intimating that mine is?"

The two San Diego victories Thursday night gave the last-place Padres an 8-7 edge over the Reds in a continuance of a four-year hex that Anderson can't explain. Over the four-year span, the Padres have won 20 of the 30 games they have played here against the Reds.

Rookie left-hander Mike Caldwell, 7-8, beat the Reds in the first game with the help of Lee's first-inning homer and a run-scoring double by Nate Colbert in the eighth.

Veteran left-hander Fred Norman, 8-9, pitched a three-hit and struck out 11 in the second game as Colbert broke 1-1 tie with a bases loaded homer in the sixth off Jack Billingham, 10-12.

"That meant a lot to me,"

Hilarious Way Wins Scioto Feature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hilarious Way came out of the field Thursday night to win the $25,000 Jug Preview at Scioto Downs, covering the mile in 1:59 1-5 and one and one-fourth lengths in front of Entrepreneur.

The time was the 27th minute or better race this season at the track.

Hilarious Way started in sixth place, moved to third on the outside at the half, then took over at the three-quarter mark and went on to win. The payoff was $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20.

Entrepreneur returned $2.60 and $2.40 while Brets Pet showed for $3.40.

The 3-6 quinella was worth $101.40 and the 2-2 daily double of Alpha Adios and Sams Express returned $20.

Attendance was 7,903; the handle $373,390.

Practice Set For Boys In PPK Contest

All the youngsters who have registered for the local PPK, Pass and Kick Competition to be held Sept. 30 will have a chance to tune up their skills at a special practice session to be held Saturday at Rod Bell Motor Sales Co. Lot, 596 N. Court Street.

"Our PPK practice will begin at noon and last 2 hours," said Ed Warning. The practice will be to familiarize the boys with competition procedure.

Ed Warning noted that registration for PPK, Pass and Kick is still open to all boys 8-13 years of age. All that is required is that the boy come into the Rod Bell Motor Sales, 596 N. Court St. showroom and sign up for PPK with either a parent or guardian. There is no entry fee or charge of any kind. Registration closes September 29.

"We'll be awarding a total of 18 winners' trophies in our local PPK competition," the Ford Dealer said. "And from our contest, winners could go on to win in the Zone, District, Area and Division competitions. After that, top competitors in each age group will go to Dallas where they'll be in the National Finals in the Pro Bowl Game, January 21."

"The all-expense-paid trip includes the parents of each finalist, a special tour of fabulous Dallas, a Banquet of Champions celebration, and the chance to meet some of the top players and coaches in professional football. Naturally, we hope some of our Circleville PPK winners will make it all the way to the National Finals," Ed Warning said.

The Ford Dealer further explained that each boy upon registration receives a free PPK Tips Book. In the 1972 edition, there are competition tips by NFL stars Dave Lewis, Roger Stauback and Garo Yepremian plus all-round suggestions from Coaches of the Year Don Shula and Tom Landry. The Tips Book also includes complete PPK rules and helpful conditioning exercises for contestants.

This is the 12th anniversary year for PPK. From its inception, the youth activity has been sponsored by the Ford Dealers of America and the National Football League. In that time more than 8,000,000 boys have taken part in PPK, making it the largest and fastest growing activity of its kind in America.

Matthews And Collett Are Barred

MUNICH (AP) — The International Olympic Committee executive board today banned American track stars Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett from all future Olympic competitions—including the 1,600-meters relay here Sunday—because of their behavior on the victory stand Thursday.

An IOC spokesman said a letter about Matthews and Collett had been sent to Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, telling him of the baning following the incident Thursday.

"The all-expense-paid trip includes the parents of each finalist, a special tour of fabulous Dallas, a Banquet of Champions celebration, and the chance to meet some of the top players and coaches in professional football. Naturally, we hope some of our Circleville PPK winners will make it all the way to the National Finals," Ed Warning said.

The IOC spokesman made no mention that Matthews and Collett would be deprived of their medals. Presumably they will not.

The IOC announcement came shortly before they were to go before the U.S. Olympic Committee, which reportedly was considering sending them home.

Deputy Finds Prisoner Is Car Thief

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Hoover today discovered that man he picked up as a suspicious person last Friday was wanted for interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle by Greensboro, N. C. police.

Deputy Hoover was in the Second National Bank last Friday when a teller questioned a $700 check that was being cashed by Lacy Dillon, 19, Greensboro. His companion was Steven Slater, 19, 450 Half Ave.

Under examination at the Pickaway County Sheriff's office, Slater admitted that he forged the check in order to purchase a car from Dillon. Dillon was found to be an Army deserter.

Early Friday morning, a teletype message from Greensboro police told the deputy that Dillon had stolen the car he was attempting to sell from Mark Spangler, Greensboro, on Aug. 24.

In a preliminary hearing, Slater was bound to the grand jury under $1,500 bond earlier this week.

Lane Church to formally dedicate a new addition to the building. Construction was begun on April 11 by Raymond Moats, contractor, and was recently completed, giving the mission a 12 by 24 foot addition containing rest rooms, a nursery and two basement classrooms.

The dedicatory program will be presented by the Pickaway County Ministerial Association with appropriate music by members of the Circleville Bible College Chorus.

The board of trustees consists of nine members elected from local churches to serve three year terms. Those presently serving are Charles Winner, Jefferson Church of Christ in Christian Union, chairman of the building committee; Delbert Ash, Jefferson Church of Christ in Christian Union; Dick Plum, Community United Methodist; Montford Kirkwood, Good Shepherd United Methodist; treasurer; William Lutz, Church of the Nazarene; Ora Benner, Church of Christ in Christian Union; Mrs. Paul Teegardin Jr., Trinity Lutheran; Mrs. David Yates, Presbyterian; the Rev. Ronald Hood, Circleville Bible College, secretary of the board; Herschel Holley, a student at Circleville Bible College, is pastor to the mission congregation.

MANY area churches have contributed to the needs of the mission since its inception in the mid 1950's. These same churches and also many individuals have made further contributions to construct the original building in 1957 and to make possible the present much needed addition. Lowery Lane residents now have a building which will serve them adequately for many years and one of which they may be justly proud.

The board of trustees wishes to invite all who are interested to join in this dedication ceremony. The mission may be reached by driving south on Court St. to Town and east on Town to Lowery Lane.

Paying all common pleas judges the same salary, the report said, would encourage the retention of good judges on district courts. Movement of judges from one bench to the other would be by appointment, with preference given to an experienced and qualified district judge.

He said he did not know what revisions the court would make in that rule before sending the package back to the legislature.

Crowley called the rules the "best and most workable" that could have been drafted and said they were based on American Bar Association standards, rulings of the U.S. and Ohio Supreme Courts and the proposed amendments to federal court rules.

Earlier Thursday at a general conference session, Geoffrey Hazard, a professor of law at Yale University, explained the new canons of judicial ethics drawn up by the American Bar Association.

Hazard was one of the drafters of the code, which requires that judges report any outside income, restricts partisan political activity to that which is necessary to run for judicial office and regulates the conduct of judges.

Hazard also called for modernization of the court system, saying Ohio has the "most bewildering variety of courts of any state in the union."

And he said the state should do away with partisan election of judges, calling it "extremely trying at best" and "incompatible with the judiciary at its best."

Shriver Preaches Full Employment For Nation

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Monday gained by ending the Vietnam War and closing tax loopholes could finance public service jobs to bring full employment to the nation, Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver says.

He campaigned about six hours Thursday in the industrial Dayton area, one of Ohio's highest unemployment regions. "The Republicans say we have to have a jobless rate between five and six per cent. We say that's a scandal," Shriver told 300-350 cheering party workers and boosters downtown at Montgomery County Democratic headquarters.

He attacked the Nixon administration on virtually every front, but at the same time defended policies of his presidential running mate, Sen. George McGovern, saying some have been misunderstood "and blown out of all proportions by our political opponents."

In response to a question Shriver said McGovern's proposed defense spending cuts do not include a plan to shut down nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where about 25,000 military and civilian personnel are employed. Voters can be sure, he said, that the nation "would retain its position of word strength under President McGovern. George McGovern and I are not going to lock up the Pentagon and throw the key in the Potomac River."

The former Peace Corps director and brother-in-law of the late President John Kennedy maintained "ending the waste of Vietnam and closing loopholes on fat cats who don't pay their fair share of taxes can give us the money we need to bring full employment."

McGovern has proposed that workers who might be laid off by defense related industries can be rehired in government paid public service jobs while the nation readjusts to what he promises would be a healthy peacetime economy. Shriver said cities like Dayton would benefit "without the taxpayers having to pay one extra cent."

Shriver stressed McGovern proposals that would require taxing capital gains, interest on municipal bonds, and other securities at the same rate wages are taxed. "Money earned by money should be taxed at the same rate as money earned by men," he said.

He cautioned the gathered party faithfuls not to be discouraged by polls showing President Nixon ahead 60 per cent to 34 per cent. "Polls are nothing but what people thought three weeks ago," he said, adding that being behind in the polls is a "comfortable position" for McGovern. Shriver said McGovern "always has been behind in the polls, and he never lost. You might ask Ed Muskie what it means to be a frontrunner."

Shriver's audience included a good mixture of senior citizens who cheered his call for higher Social Security benefits and youngsters who stood to shout their approval of the pledge to end the war "and give this country a new direction that will make our young people willing to fight for it."

Questions Taxpayers Ask
This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) I have already earned over $750 from a part-time job. Will my parents still be able to claim me as a dependent next year?

(A) Your parents will not lose the dependency exemption if you are full-time student during some part of each of five calendar months of the year, or under 19 years of age at the end of the year. They must, however, furnish over half of your total support and you must meet the other dependency tests.

For more information, write your Internal Revenue district office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publication 532, "Tax Information for Students and Parents."

(Q) Are state unemployment benefits taxable?

(A) No. Unemployment benefits paid to you by a state are generally not taxable. However, payments made by a state to a state employee, not covered by the state's unemployment compensation laws but covered under a comparable collective bargaining agreement, are taxable.

Unemployment benefit payments from a fund to which you voluntarily contribute, whether union established or set up as a private nonunion fund, are taxable to the extent that the amounts received exceed your payments into the fund.

(Q) How can I get a copy of the Federal income tax return I filed last year?

(A) Write the Internal Revenue Service Center where you filed your return, giving your name, social security number and signature as it appeared on your return. Identify the return form, the tax period and the approximate date you filed your return. Enclose a check or money order to cover the one dollar-per-page charge. No charge will be made for copies of tax returns furnished taxpayers in an area designated by the President as a disaster area.

(A) Yes. If a state or local tax is imposed on personal property on an annual basis and is based on the value of the personal property, it is deductible if you itemize deductions on your return.

Meeting Planned For McGovern-Shriver Backers
Pickaway County citizens wishing to support the bid of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and his running mate, R. Sargent Shriver, are invited to attend an organizational meeting 7 p.m. Monday at 478 N. Court St.

Speaker at the meeting will be Carl Ostermann, a professional McGovern staff member from the Boston headquarters, who will discuss the Senator's voter registration drive.

Youths Held For Break-In
Three juveniles are in Madison County jail awaiting arraignment on a breaking and entering charge filed by Mt. Sterling Police after they were caught inside that village's Glove Factory.

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff said that the arrest cleared up a break-in at a Derby gas station about 10 days go.

Mt. Sterling Police found numerous items among the youths' possessions that were taken from the gas station.

Penn Central Fined For Oil Pollution
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Penn Central Transportation Co. has been fined $500 by Franklin County Municipal Court Judge C. Howard Johnson for allowing oil to enter a Scioto River tributary here.

Last year, Penn Central was fined the same amount on a similar violation and the company has been found guilty of stream litter charges in Toledo, Bellefontaine and Sharonville, according to the Division of Wildlife of the Department of Natural Resources.

Man Arrested After Crash

The car, which sustained heavy damage, destroyed five rods of fence, four metal posts and a wooden post owned by James Holbrook, Route 3.

Deputy Deal said Cozad tested .24 on a breathalyzer examination.

(Q) Are state unemployment benefits taxable?

(A) No. Unemployment benefits paid to you by a state are generally not taxable. However, payments made by a state to a state employee, not covered by the state's unemployment compensation laws but covered under a comparable collective bargaining agreement, are taxable.

Unemployment benefit payments from a fund to which you voluntarily contribute, whether union established or set up as a private nonunion fund, are taxable to the extent that the amounts received exceed your payments into the fund.

(Q) How can I get a copy

of the Federal income tax return I filed last year?

(A) Write the Internal Revenue Service Center where you filed your return, giving your name, social security number and signature as it appeared on your return. Identify the return form, the tax period and the approximate date you filed your return. Enclose a check or money order to cover the one dollar-per-page charge. No charge will be made for copies of tax returns furnished taxpayers in an area designated by the President as a disaster area.

(A) Yes. If a state or local tax is imposed on personal property on an annual basis and is based on the value of the personal property, it is deductible if you itemize deductions on your return.
